Chapter I: Whispers of the Moon

*The sky unrolls its velvet sheet,
Where silent stars and shadows meet.*

*The moon whispers a silver tune,
To soothe the restless fields of June.*

*We walk in steps we cannot trace,
Across the quiet bounds of space,
And in the dark, our thoughts align,
Like stars that trace a ancient sign.*

Chapter II: The Silent Walk

*Heavy steps on cobblestone,
A path we walk, yet feel alone.
The streetlights flicker one by one,
Awaiting promise of the sun.*

*But in the dark, the shadows speak,
Of secrets that the lonely seek,
And every corner holds a word,
That daytime hearts have never heard.*

Epilogue: Dawn

As the sun slowly rises over the horizon, the echoes of the night fade into the light of a new day. But the words written in the dark remain, a testament to the thoughts we only dare to think when the world is asleep.
